What’s it good for?

RULDiscovery is the easiest way to find the research you need for your assignments. It searches multiple databases, including the library catalogue, to bring you access to the library’s physical and online resource collections.

Access

RULDiscovery is available on and off campus.

1. Access RULDiscovery through the Library Blackboard page (log in using your RUL username and password), or go to www.regents.ac.uk/RULDiscovery
2. Click on the link to Regent’s University London login page then enter your RUL username and password and click Login.

Basic Search

1. From the RULDiscovery homepage, enter your search terms and click Search. You can choose to search just academic journals, or books and ebooks, by selecting the appropriate button above the search box.
2. If you have a large number of results, add an extra keyword to your search, or use the Refine Results menu to reduce their number, for example, by date, type, or subject.

3. If you just want to search the physical library collection, select the Books and Ebooks button above the search box.

4. To find out more about the resource, click on the title of the document to see the abstract (overview).

5. To open the resource, click on the HTML Full Text or PDF Full Text links.

6. If the resource is stored externally, click the Access link to open the resource.

Browse

If you know the name of the journal or database that you wish to search you can browse the online resources using the Ejournals and Databases lists. Access these lists from the RULDiscovery menu bar.

Further information

- RULDiscovery's own help pages can be accessed by clicking on Help.
- Find the librarian for your subject and a link to your library subject page on the Library Contact Us page on Blackboard
