What’s it good for?

Ejournals is the easiest way to find out which online journals the University subscribes to and what years are available. It also provides links that take you directly to the database where the ejournal is stored.

Access

Ejournals is available on and off campus.

1. Go to www.regents.ac.uk/ejournals. You can also access Ejournals through RULDiscovery www.regents.ac.uk/RULDiscovery.
2. Click on the link to Regent’s University London login page then enter your RUL username and password. Click Login.
3. Select EJournals in the menu bar.

Search

1. Enter the journal title, publisher or subject area into the search box and click Search.

2. To access a journal, click on Full Text Access. This will provide a link to the journal.

The University may subscribe to different years of the journal in more than one database. Look for the subscription dates, any specific subscription information, or log in details, under the database name.
a. Click on the name of the relevant database to open the journal.

b. Use the database browse and search functions to locate the journal volume and issue. Each database will look slightly different, but should use the same basic methods for locating ejournals.

3. In the Ejournal results page, depending on the journal publisher, you may also be able to see a search box which allows you to search for articles within that journal. To search, enter your keywords and click the search icon.

Browse

You can also look for ejournals by browsing them by subject

1. From the Ejournal homepage, select a subject from the list of disciplines.

2. From the results page, you can refine your results using the 'Limit your results' options, or using the search box.
